

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a sad commentary on how big media has gone astray. They should be attempting to give a balanced view of the presidential election rather than propagandizing against one candidate. Sure it's fine to editorialize, but there should be a balance there--especially since they use the publicly owned airwaves free of charge. The showing of Stolen Honor is particularly reprehensible since it has little connection with reality or the truth. It is an attempt to sway voter opinion by deceiving. Thank you.

Dave Allen